I know one thing—if I were getting rich by paying girls $6 for a hard week's work, I'd be afraid to eat turkey today for fear I'd choke.

Sad days are in store for wives who have an idea that biscuits are fire-proof.

FOR FATHER

TAKING FARM TO TOWN

New York city has been enjoying a singular experience. The western railroads decided to "bridge the gap between the city and the farms" by giving a great land and irrigation show in the heart of the metropolis.

They showed not merely the products, but the methods, of modern agriculture as it is practiced on the prairies, the reclaimed deserts and the intermountain valleys of the West. The big steam plows, the wonderful harvesting machinery, the irrigated fields and orchards, were all re-produced for the benefit of city bumpkins who have been walking the pavements while a new world of agriculture has silently grown up.

As they couldn't take the city to the farm, these western boosters took the farm to the city. And the verdict is that the show is better than a circus.

OUR MAYOR

"I'm thankful for this," says our mayor.

"That I need not fret, worry nor care;

For a dozen will answer the call
For one little job at the hall."
